Term 4 Week 4

Wednesday 7 November 2018

Principal's Message

At a recent school assembly I have spent some time speaking with students about "reward for effort".

While most of the student group seem to understand this, there is still an underlying belief in some that, put simply, "you can get something for nothing". By this I mean that without trying to "be the best kid you can be", the rewards and privileges will happen anyway.

At Cudgen Public School we will try to teach values which can help students in their lives away from school and later on in life. Rewards and student privileges will flow to those who try to do the right thing, in a pleasant way. The students will need to develop the belief that they can make a contribution to others and this is what it looks like.

The recent Cudgen SUPA-Star initiative is an example of this where students are clearly aware that Treat Day Term 4 is linked to presenting to school with a "be the best kid you can be" attitude. It has been very positive for me to meet with Cudgen students face to face and congratulate them for the work they do and for being such fantastic young people.

Please consider an "around the dinner table" conversation that encompasses an understanding of reward for effort, and being the best kid you can be.

I recently attended a training day on developing responses to bullying in schools. The incidence of students being bullied in schools is at unacceptable high levels and has a profound impact on the mental health of young people. The solutions are sometimes simple (and sometimes hard) but do involve schools having conversations which educate us all on what bullying really is, how it affects us, and how to best prevent it.

Becoming an Upstander not a Bystander is a very cool idea and makes for another good conversation at home.

Rob Malcolm
